Find 'Security Man' Dead in Mystery

By MARK HANNA

A man believed to be a government security agent was found dead by his wife in his Yorktown Heights home today under mysterious circumstances.

Police Chief Charles Valentine, reached at the upper Westchester county community as he conferred with Air Force security, refused to discuss the case.

"It involves security and has been taken completely out of my hands," Chief Valentine told the N. Y. Journal-American.

FATHER OF FIVE

The dead man is Vaughn Edward Williams, 46, father of five, of 2822 Walker dr. He was at first believed to be an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency but a CIA official in Washington said:

"We've already been queried about him. He's not one of our men and we have no interest in the matter."

From her sister's home in Yorktown Heights where she had taken the children, Mrs. Williams also declined to discuss it.

"I'm sorry. I'm not permitted to say anything," she said, composedly. "You'll have to contact Air Force security."

AIR FORCE SURPRISED

The mystery deepened when Col. Robert J. Lennahan, chief of personnel investigations of Air Force security here, expressed surprise when queried about the case.

"We haven't heard about it, and we don't have a man living up there," he said. "But we'll look into it immediately."

The body was removed for autopsy to the Grasslands County Hospital in Valhalla, where Medical Examiner Caroline G. Lydecker said only:

"I am investigating the death and there is no comment at this time."

Asked if the body bore a bullet wound, Dr. Lydecker replied:

"I think you can say there is a bullet wound."
